Dear Aline:

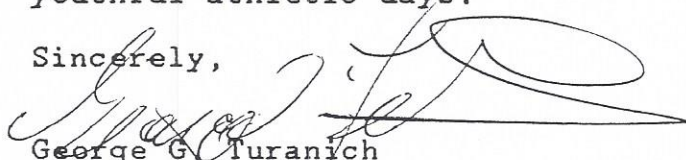

I would like to share a wonderful healing I experienced with your N.A.G. (N-acetyl-glucosamine) product. I am 36 years old and consider myself reasonably physically fit. I jog approximately 3 kilometers usually every morning. All my growing years I have been plagued with sprained ankles, mostly from playing basketball. My sprained ankles would usually take two to three weeks to heal.

About two weeks ago, during my morning jog, I twisted my ankle while running from the road on to the side walk. I tried to continue running but could not due to the pain. I limped back home and went to work. That day at the office, my ankle kept me at my chair for most of the day. Upon arriving home from work, I limped straight to the love seat in our family room where I stayed for the next two hours. By this time, my entire leg was throbbing with the pain from my ankle. While I was sitting there, I recalled our last conversation about N.A.G.. I limped over to the kitchen and took one 1000 m.g. tablet and then sat back down on the love seat.

About an hour later I felt something happening to my ankle. Within the next half hour, the pain totally dispersed. I sat there in disbelief, scared to step on my foot thinking of the pain I had just been in. I cautiously walked up to the kitchen took another 1000 m.g. N.A.G. and went to bed. When I crawled into bed I expected the weight of the covers to hurt my ankle, it didn't happen. When I awoke the next morning I got out of bed, went to the bathroom and it was only when I was about half way through shaving that I remembered I had sprained my ankle only yesterday and today I couldn't feel it at all.

As you might imagine, I was ecstatic. That day I told everyone I knew about the healing power of N.A.G.. I am writing this letter for you to share my experience with others. My only regret is I wish I had known about N.A.G. while I was limping through my youthful athletic days.

Sincerely,

George G. Turanich
